

Public Lecture Series

Moreton Bay Research Station

Saturday 30 November 2019, 10am–3pm

As part of our annual Open Day, the University of Queensland's Moreton Bay Research Station, is bringing you an exciting public lecture series. Come and join us on Saturday, 30 November 2019, at 37 Fraser St., Dunwich, QLD 4183.

| Time | Speaker | Affiliation | Talk Title | Room |
|-----------|--------------------|---|--|-------------------------|
| 10.30am | Sarah Pausina | School of Biological Sciences - The University of Queensland | "Invisible gold: the microscopic creatures of Moreton Bay" | Library |
| 11am | Kelsey Lowe | School of Social Science - The University of Queensland | "Ground-penetrating radar in Australian archaeology: recent applications and outputs" | Library |
| 11.30am | Tom Cribb | School of Biological Sciences - The University of Queensland | "Parasites in our turtles" | Library |
| 12 midday | Christopher Lawson | School of Biomedical Sciences - The University of Queensland | "Powering ocean giants: How to measure the energy needs of a manta ray" | Library |
| 12.30pm | Lunchbreak | | | |
| 1pm | Patrick Moss | School of Earth and Environmental Sciences - The University of Queensland | "Lessons from wire rush – How swamps record environmental change of Minjerrabah" | Library |
| 1.30pm | Kathy Townsend | Sunshine Coast University | "Turtles in trouble: The global impact of marine debris" | Library |
| 2pm | Glenn McGregor | Queensland Government - Department of Environment and Science (DES) | "Minjerrabah freshwater wetlands: insights from the past to ensure their future" | Library |
| 2.30pm | Barry McGovern | School of Veterinary Science - The University of Queensland | "The Moreton Bay bottlenose dolphins; living next to noisy neighbours" | Downstairs lecture room |
| 3pm | Kevin Townsend | Moreton Bay Research Station | "Closing ceremony" | Downstairs lecture room |